Prime Super welcomes new executives

Multi-sector, profit-to-members super fund, Prime Super, introduces fresh faces to its executive team. The retirement of two long-serving executives presented the Fund with the opportunity to consider its operations and set itself up for future growth.

With Chief Financial and Chief Operating Officer, Remo Memmolo's retirement, two roles have been elevated within the Fund.

Ning Yang has been promoted to General Manager, Finance. Ning joined the Fund in 2018 as the Finance Manager and, after 3.5 years, moved into the Senior Finance Manager role.

Jeremy Johnson moved into the role of General Manager, Operations. Jeremy joined the Fund as a Risk Manager in 2021 and moved to the Head of Operational Risk and Governance role two years after.

These internal promotions demonstrate the depth of emerging leaders in Prime Super.

In addition, with the retirement of Mark Ashburn, General Manager, Distribution, the Fund brought together its member and employer servicing team under one umbrella with the goal to serve members better. Tim Mitchell-Adams leads this function as the General Manager, Member Growth and Propositions. Tim brings with him more than 30 years' experience in superannuation, wealth management and investments across Australia and New Zealand.

Michael McQueen joins the Fund as General Manager, Investments, leading the Investment team that's responsible for the Fund's investment management and operations, across all investment options. He comes with more than 17 years of experience in financial services, across the superannuation, wealth management and funds management industries.

In December, Prime Super will welcome two additional executive members.

Luke Hooper joins the Fund as General Manager, Legal and Governance. Luke has 20 years of experience in the field and has deep subject matter expertise in superannuation and investment law. He has acted for a range of industry-based, government and corporate superannuation fund trustees, as well as managed investment schemes and financial service providers.

Robert Babb completes the leadership team, joining the Fund as the General Manager, Risk and Compliance. Rob comes with a strong background in enterprise risk and law. He has a proven track record in managing risk, compliance and governance across a broad spectrum of regulated industries, particularly in financial services.

Chief Executive Officer, Raelene Seales says, "This is an exciting time for Prime Super. It's a pleasure to recognise the talent within the Fund and be able to provide them opportunities within the executive team. We also welcome new talent to the organisation and are excited to benefit from the collective experience and calibre of this strong executive team as we head towards our next phase of growth. We look forward to working together to help our members achieve their retirement goals."
